

Historic, Archive Document

Do not assume content reflects current scientific knowledge, policies, or practices.

1.9
Epomella

LIBRARY
RECEIVED
★ JUN 17 1933 ★
U. S. Department of Agriculture

Who's Who

AT THE NATIONAL
4-H CLUB
CAMP

---

1 9 3 8

ALABAMA

Albert McMahan, Cleburne County, lives on a 200-acre farm and has had many achievements in his 9 years of club work covering cotton, pigs, and corn. For several years he has been a member of the stock-judging team. Albert now has three purebred Jersey heifers, a brood sow, and one cow. At present he is local leader of his club and also secretary and treasurer of the County Council. He has filled all the offices in his club.

Annie Rinehart, Etowah County, has included livestock, room improvement, cooking, canning, clothing, garden, and poultry among her club work for the last 5 years. Through actually doing the work she has learned the value of record keeping. Hogs have been exhibited by Annie at the county fair, and she has participated in the judging of livestock and clothing. Last year she helped to can 216 quarts of fruit and vegetables. She has given public talks on club work. Annie has filled all the offices of her club.

Worden Weaver, Mobile County, first undertook club work 6 years ago, specializing in truck garden with corn, peanuts, pig, calf, cotton, and flowers. On many occasions he has been a member of both judging and demonstration teams. In addition to exhibiting calf, pig, corn, and peanuts, he also has made floral exhibits at the county fair. Worden plans to use the money made through his club projects to help defray his expenses in college. In addition to being president, vice president, secretary, and treasurer of his club, he has assisted with the county livestock program.

Hilda Yates, Elmore County, has completed 6 years of club work in canning, meal planning, clothing, room improvement, and dairy-animal production. Each year, she has helped with the home canning, helped other club members with their food preservation work, and kept a health-habit chart. She has been active in leadership, judging, and demonstration work, and has exhibited her projects at both club and county events. In addition to being song leader, she has filled the various offices of her club.

ARKANSAS

Evelyn Butter, Dallas County, has covered a wide range of projects including poultry, pigs, calf, cotton, gardening, clothing, cooking, canning, and home management. She has given a demonstration in "cottage cheese and cottage-cheese dishes" and been a member of the bread-judging team. Evelyn has filled the offices of secretary, president, and chairman of the recreation committee.

Clara Ruth Grimes, Greene County, lives on a 77-acre farm and has had 7 years' experience in gardening, canning, meal planning, room improvement, clothing, sheep, dairy calf, and turkey raising. She has been a member of both the judging and demonstration teams. Clara has organized a 4-H club and helped members with their various problems. She has held most of the offices of her club.

James H. Mordic, Monroe County, has had 8 years' experience in cotton, pig, dairy, and corn-club work. James put on exhibits at the county fair, and participated in dairy judging. He has organized a 4-H club, acted as local leader, and been president of his club 3 years.

Adelbert Strang, north Sebastian County, chose corn, soybeans, dairy calf, pigs, and peanuts when he joined a 4-H club 9 years ago. He has been vice president, song leader, and reporter.

COLORADO

Art Brown, Logan County, has a splendid 7-year record of club work in sheep and beef fattening. In 1932 Art and his brother went into partnership and exhibited their stock at county and State fairs as well as at Denver each year under the name of Brown Brothers. At present they are feeding 6 calves to be exhibited at the eastern shows. Art has given demonstrations in sheep blocking. He has been president of the Logan County 4-H Club Organization.

Virginia Demaree, Adams County, first undertook club work 8 years ago, choosing as her projects clothing, poultry, room improvement, and canning. She has shown excellence in foods judging, given demonstrations in caponizing, and been a member of the clothing, canning, and poultry demonstration teams. She has exhibited her room-improvement, clothing, and canning work for several years; has been president, vice president, and stunt leader of her club; and has assisted the 4-H club leader during the past 3 years.

Joyce La Barr, Montrose County, selected canning, meal planning, clothing, dairying, and foods as her club enterprises 8 years ago. At the State fairs she not only has been active in judging livestock and clothing, but for the past 4 years has successfully exhibited her canning. Some of her exhibit was sent from the State fair to Chicago 2 successive years. Joyce does sewing for her younger sister and also has given sewing demonstrations. Last year she was leader of a baking and meal-preparation club. She has been president, vice president, and secretary of her club.

Ernest Shader, Larimer County, has specialized in dairy and pig club work during the past 7 years and also has had 2 years' experience in growing sugar beets. During the past 5 years he has done considerable work in cattle judging and, in addition, has coached some of the club boys in judging livestock. Ernest has made 16 exhibits of fat swine at State fairs and stock shows. He feels that the best animals on his home farm are the result of 4-H club work. Ernest has given demonstrations on weed control. He has filled the club offices of president, vice president and reporter.

CONNECTICUT

Frances Gillotti, Fairfield County, started her club work 5 years ago. During this time she has completed projects in clothing, nature study, and canning and foods. She has held some office in her club each year--president, secretary, news reporter. She has missed only two club meetings in 5 years, and most of the time she has had to walk 3 miles to attend them. Frances has participated in demonstration and judging work, and, as assistant leader of her club, has had the responsibility of the canning project. She is now successfully leading a group of younger girls besides doing her own work.

Henry Haley, New London County, lives on a 300-acre farm and has been in club work 4 years, carrying gardening, corn, poultry, and farm accounts. He has exhibited his work at both the State and county fairs, and has been active in judging work and a member of several county demonstration teams. He has attended all the meetings of his club, and has been president, secretary, and assistant leader.

Leslie Jewett, Windham County, has a splendid 10-year record of club work, and has specialized in dairying during the entire period. He added poultry 3 years ago. Leslie has established a name for himself as a dairy judge, exhibitor, and showman. He is a member of the county club committee and has been active in the county camp program. At present he is chairman of the town club committee and is doing many things to help to make club work available for other young people. He has filled the offices of president, secretary, and treasurer.

Beulah Shanley, Litchfield County, lives on a 660-acre farm and has been active in both agricultural and homemaking club work. This has included dairying, gardening, canning, foods, clothing, and keeping records. The pride of her heart was a Jersey heifer with which she started dairy work. Beulah is a member of the county champion dairy demonstration team, has been outstanding in her judging, and is a successful exhibitor. She has filled the offices of president, secretary, treasurer, and reporter.

DELAWARE

Silus Americus, Kent County, during his 9 years of club experience has been interested in poultry: For a few years he carried gardening, corn and canning, then continued with his poultry work. He judged poultry and corn at the State fairs. Silus has been reporter, vice president, and secretary for his club.

George Crossland, New Castle County, joined a 4-H club 5 years ago and has been interested in gardening, farm records, corn, and the raising of Guernsey heifers. As a member of a demonstration team, he has given a demonstration in "production of clean milk." He has been reporter for his club.

Thelma Dickerson, Sussex County, a club member of 8 years' standing, chose clothing as her first club enterprise, adding gardening work later. Thelma has made her own clothes for several years, and now, as extra work, she sews for other people. Her clothing work has been exhibited many times in the style show at county fairs. She has held the offices of secretary and treasurer.

Mary Louise Downs, New Castle County, has specialized in clothing work during her 3 years of club experience. She has assisted some of the leaders in carrying out their programs, and encouraged and helped younger members in their clothing work. Mary has participated in putting on exhibits, been president of her club 2 years, and now is secretary of the Junior Council.

FLORIDA

John D. Campbell, Dade County, has had 7 years' experience in gardening, strawberries, dairy calf, and poultry work. Much of his produce has been used at home to help keep down living expenses. John has been a member of the dairy demonstration team. He has served as secretary, vice president, and reporter of his club, and president of the County Council.

J. Leroy Fortner, Alachua County, started club work 4 years ago with two Hereford cows, and later added corn, tobacco, pig, and peanuts to his work. He has exhibited fat steers at the State fat-stock show, been a member of the livestock judging team, and president and vice president of his club. Through his 4-H club work he has been able to save money for his college expenses.

Gladys Hazen, east Hillsborough County, has had many fine achievements in gardening, poultry, dairying, canning, baking, home improvement, and clothing. She furnishes food from her garden, dairying and poultry for her family the year round. Each year during the past 6 years she has exhibited her projects and given demonstrations in a number of her activities. Having filled all the offices of her club she now is president of the County Council.

Ruth Hendricks, Dade County, has learned a good many useful things since enrolling in clothing, food preparation, baking, gardening, canning, poultry, home improvement, and flowers. Her home-improvement record and clothing work have been exhibited and she has given demonstrations in "room arrangement" and "dishwashing." Ruth has charge of the community plays and has been president and record chairman of her club.

GEORGIA

Venice Hegwood, Walker County, has carried projects in canning, gardening, nutrition, clothing, home improvement, and health, during the past 5 years. Venice has put on exhibits of her various enterprises a number of times at the State exhibition. She has held all the offices in her club.

Troy Manning, Laurens County, is serving his second year as president of the County 4-H Club Council and has held various other offices. During his 4 years as a club member he has had corn, cotton, beef cattle, pigs, and soybean hay as his projects. He has been active in judging and demonstration work and has given demonstrations in "standard livestock grading." Last year he organized the first club library, which now consists of nearly 100 booklets and bulletins.

John R. Minchew, Ware County, has been interested in hog raising and tobacco growing during the last 4 years. John has shown outstanding leadership qualities in his club work and has assisted the agent in his community. He served his club as secretary, treasurer, and vice president.

Jeanne Patterson, Chatham County, has been active in club work for 7 years, during which time she has had experience in canning, gardening, clothing, home improvement, leadership, and wild-life conservation. Last year she was a member of a demonstration team in a state-wide landscape-gardening event. She has occupied the offices of treasurer, secretary, recreation and song leader, and chairman of the program committee.

ILLINOIS

Helen Bitterman, Will County, with a record of 6 years in 4-H club work, has carried 21 projects in clothing, foods, room improvement, and home-ground beautification, and exhibited her articles on some 35 occasions. During the last 3 years, Helen has made not only all her own clothes, but most of her mother's dresses and some for young relatives. Last year she took over the responsibility of the family canning, the result being about 125 quarts of fruits and vegetables, in addition to jellies, jam, and pickles. During 1937 she also directed a clothing club of 17 girls and a foods club of 16 girls while carrying her own projects. In addition to being active in judging at county and State events, she has held the offices of president, recreational chairman, and reporter. Her experience as club reporter aided her in obtaining assignments from the local newspaper.

Donald Mosher, DeKalb County, has been in club work for 6 years, and has included beef cattle, sheep, corn, farm management, and sow and litter among his projects. He fed out 10 calves in 4 years. Last year he had, in partnership with his father, 194 pigs and a 12-acre corn field consisting of six different hybrids and one open-pollinated variety. The last-mentioned variety appeared to be best until the corn eared out, when the hybrids established their superiority, and it was decided that they were to be used on the farm in the future. Donald's farm-management record for 1936 and 1937, kept on their 160-acre farm, was excellent. For 2 years he has been leader of the Afton 4-H Club.

Harold W. Reusch, Jo Daviess County, has carried dairying, corn, sow and litter, and farm management during his 10 years as a club member. A Guernsey calf was his first project. In 1935 and 1936 he exhibited part of his dairy project at the State fair. The purebred heifers he raised were sold for beef. Harold did county-wide club work last year, helping to organize new clubs and to develop demonstration and judging teams. He was a member of his club's dairy-judging team. He has served his club as assistant leader, and has been president for the last 3 years and chairman of both the recreational and program committees.

Helen Wolf, Fulton County, a club member of 7 years' standing, has participated in foods, clothing, canning, and baking projects. Among other events her club career has included clothing, judging, baking, and foods demonstrations. One of her demonstrations was on "Possibilities of pectin." Two years ago she organized a foods club which she has led ever since. Helen has been a member of the All State Chorus and also recreational leader. She has filled the club offices of president, secretary, treasurer, and reporter. She has been a member of the local achievement committee and the committee on arrangements at the fair for her club.

INDIANA

Clifford L. Breeden, Tippecanoe County, has been interested in garden, swine, and poultry projects during the last 7 years. His records show that he has supervised the activities of 52 poultry-club members, served on 21 committees, and given 23 public demonstrations. Clifford was a member of the 1937 vegetable judging team. Every year he has exhibited at either the county or State fair. He was responsible for starting the Berkshire breed in his community. He has been assistant leader of the garden club.

Mildred Goff, Parke County, believes it would be difficult to list the innumerable advantages she has received through club work during her 10-year membership. She has completed 21 projects which have included clothing, health, baking, canning, food-preparation, and leadership. One half of her club life has been spent directing 102 girls in club work. Mildred has been active and has shown excellence in her judging work covering baking, foods, demonstrations, and dress revues. In her leadership work over a period of 5 years, she often has had two or three clubs each year. She has held an office in the local club every year and has been an active committee member.

Vernon T. Hitchcock, Delaware County, is completing his sixth year of club work and has covered a wide range of projects including sheep, swine, poultry, corn, potatoes, soybeans, alfalfa, junior leadership, and health. Besides serving on numerous committees, he has been leader in both the lamb and pig clubs; has participated in 23 judging contests covering corn, livestock, and dairying; and has taken part in 16 demonstrations. Vernon has made exhibits at local, county, and State shows.

Agnes McCulloch, Scott County, has completed 17 projects in clothing, room improvement, food preparation, and baking, during the 7 years she has been in club work. Four years of that time were spent as junior leader directing club work for 106 girls. She has been active in judging and dress-revue activities. Agnes has exhibited at the State fair and has been outstanding in community activities, having given 37 talks on club work and 23 public demonstrations, and written 15 articles on 4-H club work.

IOWA

Marie Grunewald, Benton County, has been interested in canning, baking, clothing, and home furnishings since 1932, and has been outstanding in her work. Frequently, she takes her mother's place when it is time for baking bread or canning. Refinishing floors and walls has been included in her home-improvement project. Her experience in keeping a personal expense account for the past 5 years has given her an appreciation of the value of money and the desirability of planning ahead, and has enabled her to keep her mother's home accounts for the family. Marie has missed but one club meeting in 6 years, has given 42 talks on club work reaching over 5,000 people, and is vice president of a 4-H girls' organization of 14,000 members.

Myron A. Johnson, Boone County, selected purebred sow and litter as his club project 10 years ago; since then he has enrolled in baby beef, sheep, corn, and dairy work. Myron developed a flock of 25 purebred sheep, and at present is feeding 30 animals in his livestock projects. He has exhibited 90 head of livestock in county and State shows, has been a member of the county judging team in 11 livestock and grain State judging events, and also was a member of the 1937 champion horse-judging team. He has been assistant leader and secretary of the county 4-H organization for 2 years, has served as chairman on numerous committees and filled all the offices in his club. Through his 4-H projects he has sufficient income to pay for his college course.

Grover Miehle, Fayette County, has specialized in dairy work for the past 9 years. Besides the dairy project, his interests have been divided among farm business records, soils, market pig production, and poultry. Grover lives on a farm and has been active in club work, having held every office, as well as a county office for 3 years. He is a member of the County Holstein Breeders' Club committee, has exhibited cattle and participated in county, State, National, and international dairy judging during the past 4 years. He has given many talks on club work, and this year he assisted with the organization of two new clubs in his county. For the last 4 years he has been in State dairy-production work. At the present time he has five heifers in a contest, one of which was credited with 80.2 percent butterfat production.

Kathryn Monson, Fremont County, a club member of 9 years' standing, has carried a wide range of projects including canning, baking, meal planning, home furnishing, clothing, and nutrition. Kathryn makes all her own clothes, and has refinished furniture and painted floors and woodwork in improving both her room and that of her sister. She also has made an exhibit of refinished furniture and given demonstrations on canning chicken. She has done excellent work in keeping record books. Kathryn has held all the offices in her club and also in the county 4-H organization.

KANSAS

Marcella Beat, Kingman County, has had many fine achievements in her 6 years of club work, including canning, clothing, baking, junior leadership and room improvement. She has been junior leader in both baking and clothing clubs, and a consistent exhibitor of her club enterprises. Marcella was on the General Fair Committee and has had charge of the clothing exhibits at the fair in addition to helping to make booths and posters. She has done fine work on her record books, and been reporter and president of her club, and a member and vice president of the County Council.

Patricia Beezley, Crawford County, is completing 9 years of club work in baking, dairying, canning, swine, beef, clothing, and leadership. She has been community leader for the past 2 years. Patricia and her sister constituted the demonstration team that represented the State in a demonstration in the use of dairy products for the National Dairy Show, and since then they have given the demonstration fourteen times before at least a thousand persons. She has been a member of five demonstration teams and has helped to coach other teams. She has made exhibits of her work at the State fairs and has filled all the offices of her club.

John Kepley, Bourbon County, living on a large farm, has enjoyed 11 years of club experience with baby beef, corn, farm accounts, junior leadership, and poultry as his projects. John has fed 12 calves and raised about 1,100 bushels of corn. He now has a team of horses, one of which he bought with profits from his club work. He has kept complete records of his enterprises, and has exhibited at a number of fairs and shows. John has been a member of the 4-H Council, and has assisted community leaders during the past 5 years in connection with his junior leadership work.

Oscar Norby, Pratt County, has covered, during his 5 years of club experience, a wide range of projects, including dairy, garden, leadership, sheep, sow and litter, market pigs, and swine. His chief interest has been dairying, which he started with a heifer calf. Each year he has exhibited calves as well as his other enterprises, including fat barrows last year. Oscar has been a member of various judging teams, having judged livestock and dairy cattle for the past 5 years. During the last 3 years he has had charge of arranging for the livestock exhibits at the county fair. He has taken part in club plays and coached the play last year, and been leader of a new club, program chairman, president, and vice president.

KENTUCKY

Glenn Clay, Nicholas County, has completed 22 projects during his 7 years of club work. These projects include sheep, baby beef, tobacco, turkeys, hogs, and chickens. He has exhibited at the county fair, lamb show, State baby-beef show, and the State turkey show. He introduced purebred sheep, beef cattle, and poultry on his father's farm. In 1936 Glenn had 150 turkeys, he sold 5,000 eggs, and the same year he also raised 298 turkeys. The record books which he kept on his work were excellent. In addition to organizing a 4-H club in a nearby community and acting as its leader, he has been a member of the county judging and demonstration teams, president and secretary of his local club, director of the county fair, and president of the Kentucky Association of 4-H Clubs, as well as a member of the University 4-H Club. Through his club work he built up a fund to help pay his way through college.

Margaret Gulley, Garrard County, since enrolling in club work 8 years ago, has carried canning, baby beef, foods, and clothing, as her projects. Each year for 3 years she exhibited a calf in the first carload at the baby-beef show and also showed canning at the Kentucky State Fair. Margaret has served on five county demonstration teams, and been leader of a clothing project with 20 girls and secretary of both the county and the baby-beef club.

Laura Johnson, Simpson County, has learned a good many useful things since joining a 4-H club 10 years ago. Her chief interest have been canning, poultry, dairying, pigs, tobacco, clothing, and room improvement. Laura has been a member of the State-champion demonstration and cattle-judging teams. She has filled the offices of secretary-treasurer, reporter, and program chairman of her club, and has been president and secretary of the State association.

S. J. Stokes, Jr., Fayette County, is completing his seventh year in club work, having specialized in sheep, baby beef, and tobacco. He has fed and exhibited champion shorthorn cattle in the State baby-beef show, and exhibited sheep and baby beef at the district and State fairs. Jimmy owns a flock of 12 purebred Southdown sheep and a small herd of registered shorthorn cattle. He is a member of the county champion-livestock judging team.

LOUISIANA

Mariena Bordelon, Avoyelles County, has had many fine achievements during the past 8 years in poultry, orchard, gardening, food preservation, clothing, and home improvement. Mariena has made many splendid exhibits of her work, assisted younger clothing club members, and last year was given charge of several girls. She has been leader of her club 2 years; also president, vice president, and secretary, as well as a member of the executive committee.

Dewell Gandy, Claiborne County, has specialized in calf raising and forestry work during the past 5 years. Each year for 4 years Dewell has exhibited calves at the State fair, and has done fine work in judging dairy cattle. He has served as secretary, vice president, and president of his club, and is vice president of the Executive Council.

Theron Price, Rapides County, chose cotton, potatoes, corn, cane, bees, and peanuts as his club projects 8 years ago. During the past 6 years he has made exhibits at State and National events and been active in livestock and dairy judging. He has served as vice president and president of his club, and is a member of the executive committee.

Geraldine L. Williams, Rapides County, has included canning, home improvement, poultry, and gardening in her club work, which she started 8 years ago. Each year, she has exhibited poultry, clothing, and canning, and has judged poultry and garden products and given demonstrations in "clothing" and "table service." Geraldine has given much assistance in helping other club members and training demonstration teams. She has held all the offices of her club.

MAINE

Edward F. Bagley, Kennebec County, became interested in poultry about 5 years ago, and then specialized in raising beans. Last year he took farm accounting. Edward has been active and shown excellence in judging vegetables, particularly potatoes and beans, eggs, and in his record-sheet work. As a member of a demonstration team he has given a demonstration on "cucumber scab." He has made an exhibit of beans several times at the State fair, and given many talks on 4-H club work. Edward has been treasurer, secretary, assistant leader, and reporter.

Clarissa French, Penobscot County, a club member of 5 years' standing, has been enrolled in the cooking and housekeeping project for 7 years, and in addition has carried clothing-club work. Clarissa has exhibited her work at the State fair, given demonstrations in "table setting," and assisted younger members of the club with their work. She has filled the offices of secretary, treasurer, and vice president, and been chairman of several committees.

Dorothy Gilman, Oxford County, has taken canning, cooking, sewing, room improvement, and housekeeping projects during her 7 years in club work. She has been active in judging and demonstration work and exhibited her canning. Dorothy has earned money canning for friends; she has canned over 3,000 pints in 4 years. She makes all her own clothes and has held practically all the offices in her club.

Charles B. Tebbetts Jr., Androscoggin County, started in club work 9 years ago specializing in potatoes, corn and beans, and added poultry later. He has exhibited corn and potatoes at both State and National events; given demonstrations in the proper preparation of bordeau mixture; and has been active in helping to organize clubs and help new 4-H members. He was president of his club for 2 years, and now is president of the County 4-H Friendship Service Club.

MARYLAND

James W. Davis, Harford County, has had several years' experience in raising poultry, pigs, calf, cow, and hybrid corn. Each year he has exhibited livestock at the county and State fairs, and, as a member of the county judging team, has been active in judging livestock for the past 6 years. James has assisted younger boys in judging work, been president of his club for 2 years, and is a member of the County Council. He is building up a dairy herd for himself.

Dorothy Fouche, Frederick County, specialized at first in clothing work and later added canning, baking, home furnishing, and flower gardening. Dorothy makes all her own clothes, and helps to can 300 jars of food each year. She has exhibited canning and clothing work for the past 5 years and now is a member of the clothing judging team and local leader of a club of 25 girls. She is interested in community affairs, has filled the various offices in her club, and is president of the County Senior Council.

Henry Koller, Carroll County, became interested 9 years ago in poultry, potatoes, farm accounting, purebred Jerseys, fat barrows, baby beeves, and ducks. He has been a member of the livestock judging team, exhibited livestock at the county fairs, and assisted his father who is local leader of the club. Henry has held all the offices in his club, and is treasurer of the County Senior Council.

Mary King Wilson, Allegany County, began club work 10 years ago with baking, poultry, clothing, and home furnishing. During this time she has exhibited her baking at the county and State fairs, given demonstrations in baking, and participated in judging work. Mary organized the first 4-H glee club in the county, she takes responsibility in local and county 4-H activities, and has been secretary, treasurer, president, and music chairman of her club.

MASSACHUSETTS

Betty M. Andrews, Dukes County, specializing in clothing and leadership work, has 9 years' experience to her credit. She has exhibited her work at county and State fairs, and has helped many of the younger members with their sewing problems. Having served 2 years as an assistant leader, she now is leading a clothing club. Betty has occupied the offices of president, secretary, chairman of the program committee, and song leader.

George Babits, Franklin County, has a splendid 7-year record of club work. He has specialized in gardening, and the knowledge gained through his club work to combat bugs and diseases, has helped materially in his being able to raise fine crops. George has exhibited his products at the county fair. He established a route over which he sold vegetables regularly. Being the oldest of a family of four boys, and having lost his father, he holds a job outside school hours in addition to his 4-H work. He has been reliable in taking charge of a county group for the past few years. One year he was assistant local leader, and later was local leader for 3 years. George also has been president of the garden club.

E. Lee Flemming, Bristol County, has been connected with club work since 1929, specializing in handicraft, and has done some splendid work. During his second year he became assistant local leader and then local leader - a position which he now holds. The handicraft club he is leading is considered one of the finest in the county. He is an active member of the County Service Club and is responsible for much of its success. He was president of his club 2 years.

Esther Usher, Essex County, selected canning, gardening, clothing, and homecraft as her club enterprises 10 years ago. Esther has participated in judging, given many demonstrations, and exhibited each year at the fair. For a number of years Esther's mother has been canning for sale between eight and ten thousand jars of products and Esther has helped her. Because of this knowledge of canning she was able to carry on her mother's canning business 1 year while her mother was ill. She has her own garden of 12,000 square feet and also helps her father take care of his market garden. She has been leader of the homecraft club and has filled various offices in her club. Money made through her club work has been used by Esther toward her college expenses.

MICHIGAN

Martha F. Hanson, Ontonagon County, has completed 10 years' activity in canning, clothing, home management, and gardening. She has done especially good work in judging canning and clothing, having exhibited a complete costume and also her canning several times. She made an original achievement booth which was shown at local, county, and State exhibits. Martha also has participated in local and county health work, and held all the offices in her club.

William Knox, Chippewa County, has specialized in dairying throughout his 8 years' membership in the 4-H club. William has shown excellence in dairy-cattle judging, given demonstrations in fitting, showing, and feeding cattle, and exhibited at the State and National dairy shows. He has been chairman of the 4-H exhibition at the county fair, leader of the weekly 4-H radio broadcast, and organized and led county service group, organized primary judging teams, and coached first local teams. William has served as president of the State Service Club and as assistant local leader and local leader of his club.

Homer Ogden Moore, Branch County, living on a 262-acre farm, has specialized in sheep, beef, and handicraft. On many occasions he has exhibited his sheep and handicraft work, has shown excellence in judging sheep, been a member of the State judging team, and given many demonstrations in shearing - he sheared a sheep and tied the wool in  $4\frac{1}{2}$  minutes. With money from his club work he has bought a shearing outfit and has done custom shearing on Saturdays, having sheared 800 head of sheep, the income from which has helped to defray his senior year's school expenses. He has served as president of his club, the Rural Youth Club, and the Michigan Service Club, and chairman on several committees.

Alice May Wells, Hillsdale County, has carried 17 projects in canning, clothing, and food preparation during her club membership. She has been leader of a canning club of 12 girls and now is leader of a clothing club. She has exhibited her clothing work and canning at the State fair, having canned 515 quarts last year, and, in connection with her meat canning, has put up individual meat loaves which have proved popular with her family. She finds her 2 years' experience in food preparation useful when her mother attends Farm Women's Week, for then she prepares the meals and runs the house. Each office in the club has been filled by Alice.

MINNESOTA

Wilfred Denisen, Mower County, has covered a wide range of projects including poultry, swine, dairy, calf, sheep, garden, corn, and leadership during his 6 years' experience. He has exhibited poultry and fat lambs, and has done both dairy and general judging and been a member of the team which gave demonstrations in "pruning trees," "sheep judging", "swine grading", and "marketing livestock."

Catharine A. Doran, Washington County, became interested 9 years ago in clothing, poultry, dairy calf, baking, canning, and recently added to her work farm accounts and wildlife conservation. Each year Catharine has put on an exhibit, she also has judged baking, dairy, and clothing. She has given demonstrations in canning and sewing and coached demonstration teams. In addition to giving talks on 4-H club work, she has filled all the offices of her club.

Eileen Mittelsteadt, Waseca County, completed 10 years' activity in room improvement, clothing, canning, baking, and meal preparation. On numerous occasions she has made exhibits of the room-improvement and clothing work. She has been superintendent of judging work at the county fairs. Eileen has been secretary, reporter, and chairman of various committees.

Donald Sandager, Lincoln County, living on a 230-acre farm, has been interested in gardening, colts, poultry, pigs, farm accounts, junior leadership, and home beautification. He has exhibited his poultry at the State fair, judged livestock, and given demonstrations in "conservation" and "home beautification." Donald has presented programs at farm organizations and has served all the offices of his club.

MISSISSIPPI

Billy R. Downey, Lauderdale County, selected corn, cotton, peanuts, sweetpotatoes, dairy calves, pigs, and soybeans as his club work 8 years ago. He has exhibited his projects each year at the State and county fairs, and on many occasions has been a member of the demonstration and judging teams. Most of the profits from his club work have been used to defray school expenses. During the past 4 years he has been assigned one-half of his club district to assist members with their record books and the preparation of exhibits of their products for the fair. Every one of these members exhibited and also turned in a completed record book. Billy has been assistant leader 2 years, and has served as president, vice president, and project captain.

Jo Gill, De Soto County, has covered, during his 7 years' experience, a wide range of projects including corn, pig, cotton, colt, dairy, poultry, farm accounting, and sweetpotato. For the past 4 years he has specialized in dairying, he and his brother having active management of their own herd as well as that of their father--65 head exclusive of the young animals. Jo has done excellent work in judging dairy livestock, made 10 exhibits at the county fair and 2 at the inter-State fair, given talks on club work, and served as secretary and president of the county council. He is renting 10 acres planted to cash crops to take care of his college expenses.

Ilene Holder, Holmes County, has had many fine achievements during the past 5 years in gardening, canning, foods, home improvement, and clothing. She has canned a total of 1,222 pints of fruits and vegetables and prepared 446 meals. She has given demonstrations in baking and the preparation of school lunches, and has been active in judging canning, baking, and clothing work as well as exhibiting her work at State fairs on many occasions. Ilene has kept excellent record books during her club work, has been president of her club each year, and has helped with camps and rallies.

Capitola Savell, Neshoba County, has completed 5 years activity in gardening, canning, poultry, foods, and clothing work. As a garden-canning club member she has canned 3,212 pints and 1,256 quarts of food and had a year-round garden each year, and sold vegetables, fruits, and chickens. Capitola has given demonstrations in "How to prepare and pack a school lunch," and "How a school-girl should dress." She has shown excellence in her judging work, and for several years has exhibited her gardening and canning products at the State fairs. She has filled all the offices in her club and has been leader for the last 2 years.

MISSOURI

Waunita Cantwell, Lawrence County, has been in 4-H club work 8 years, and has carried on 10 club projects successfully. She is now a member of the program committee of the county council, assisting in the organization of new clubs in order that more rural boys and girls in her county may enjoy the benefits of club work. Besides completing projects in clothing, meal preparation, room improvement, baking, and poultry raising, she has led three clubs of younger girls. Waunita has been a member of the clothing demonstration team and has exhibited her sewing at the State fairs. In addition to being song leader, she has held all of the other offices in her club.

James F. Milton, Jackson County, during 8 years' membership in the 4-H club, has completed 13 projects including work with beef and dairy calves, dairy cows, colts, and corn. He exhibited steers at livestock shows for 2 years and has been a member of the State dairy-judging team. James has served 2 years as assistant club leader and 1 year as club leader. More recently he served as local leader in two county-wide campaigns of the extension service in his county. He has filled the office of president and vice president of his club.

Paul Selken, Pettis County, has specialized in dairy husbandry throughout his entire 6 years as a club member, having completed 23 dairy projects in that period. He now owns a valuable dairy herd which has earned sufficient income to pay his expenses at the Missouri College of Agriculture, where he is now a freshman. Paul has been a member of the local dairy judging teams for 5 years and the State teams for 2 years. He has made valuable contributions to club work by serving as a leader in his community. During the past 5 years he has exhibited dairy cattle at the district and State fairs. He has been president, secretary, and reporter of his club.

Marjorie M. Smith, Howard County, has had 9 years' experience in club work and has led five clubs of younger girls. Her chief interests have been dairy, forestry, foods, and clothing. Marjorie has been a member of many demonstration and judging teams. She is a member of the County 4-H Club Trio, which for 3 consecutive years won the highest award in singing at the 4-H Club State Round-Up. She is also a member of the quartette that won first place last year at a national song contest. For several years she has exhibited clothing work at the State fair. She has held all the offices in her club.

MONTANA

Ann Greenfield, Lewis and Clark County, has completed 9 years' activity in canning, meal planning, clothing, and turkeys. She has exhibited turkeys, baking, and clothing during the past 3 years and has been active in judging home-economics work. Last year she was leader of a girls' luncheon club, and now is a member and the leader of a home-improvement club. She has held the club offices of president, vice president, secretary, and song leader.

Sam Lenz, Cascade County, lives on a 512-acre farm and has been interested in dairy calf and swine for the past 6 years. He has been a member of the county and State demonstration team. The team has given a demonstration in "Producing quality market milk for babies." Sam has consistently and successfully exhibited his dairy cattle and swine at the State fairs during the past 4 years. He has been president of the 4-H Builders' Club, a county-wide organization for older 4-H boys and girls, which was organized in 1936. All the offices of his club have been held by Sam.

Natalie McDermott, Teton County, lives on a 160-acre farm and has had 7 years' experience in gardening, corn, calf, meal-planning, cooking, and clothing work. She has been a member of a demonstration team and has exhibited her baking, clothing, and dairy calf each year during the past 5 years. Last year she trained the home-economics demonstration team and also organized and was the leader of a luncheon club of 13 members. This year she is leader of a dinner club. She has filled the various offices of her club.

Robert D. Sullivan, Flathead County, first undertook dairy-calf, sheep, and farm-record work 7 years ago. He has been a member of the judging and demonstration teams participating in the State and county fairs, and has exhibited lambs at the State fair. He has filled the offices of president, song leader, and reporter, and has assumed leadership of 4-H club work in his community.

NEBRASKA

Max Kemling, Perkins County, started in club work 6 years ago and has completed 13 projects in sow and litter, sheep, rope, sorghum, and corn. During this time he has entered many demonstrations, has been a member of three judging teams, and was a member of the regional demonstration team on the prevention of losses through bruised and damaged animals in 1936. He was acting secretary of the sheep division of the junior fair board for 2 years. As a result of his work in the lamb club his father became interested and now has several hundred head of sheep. He has been leader of the ewe and lamb club for the last 2 years.

Dorothy Mae Lipke, Cheyenne County, lives on an 255-acre farm and has carried 22 projects including clothing, hot lunch, room improvement, gardening, and canning during her 9 years' experience as a club girl. Dorothy makes all her own clothes, has participated in 256 demonstrations, was a member of the health club for 3 years, has exhibited her club work at six State fairs and kept complete records of her work. She has been assistant leader, secretary, reporter, and president of her club as well as a leader in her home community.

Monetha Newman, York County, has covered, during her 8 years' experience, a wide range of projects including canning, dairying, cooking, and room improvement. Each year she has exhibited one or two Holsteins in the 4-H club classes and also baked foods at the State fairs, having made 137 exhibits in all. Monetha has given 13 team and 16 individual demonstrations and coached eight demonstration and two judging teams. She has held all the offices in her club and has served on numerous committees. In 1935 she started as a club leader, and since then has been leader and assistant leader of eight home-economics clubs. This year she helped the county agent in club organization.

Norman Yates, Fillmore County, is in his eighth year of club experience, carrying gardening, swine, baby-beef, and corn projects. He has been a member of the livestock judging team for several years, exhibited baby beef and swine a number of times, and given demonstrations on "Hot weather care of pigs," "Fitting a calf for show," "Hot-weather care of calves," and "How to make a rope halter." He organized and was president of a Fix-It Club with 27 members, and they exhibited their work at the county fair. Last year he joined the poultry club and cared for 60 chickens. Today he has a small herd of purebred Angus cattle, 50 sheep, and a flock of chickens as a result of his work. He has derived considerable satisfaction from keeping accurate records of his work. He has been president and reporter of his club.

NEW HAMPSHIRE

Roland Anderson, Merrimack County, has been in club work 8 years. Health, food, poultry, shopwork, and leadership are among the projects he has carried during that time. For 2 years he was a member of the county poultry judging team, and he has exhibited each year at the fair. He has been treasurer of the Merrimack Valley Youth Extension Club and at the present time is social chairman of the organization. Roland has been president, vice president, treasurer, and junior leader of his club.

Paul Ellis, Cheshire County, started his 4-H club work in 1933 when he signed up for a forestry project. In the past 6 years he has added gardening, poultry, canning, and leadership to his list of completed work. He did so well in gardening for 3 years that he was selected as a member of the county vegetable judging team which competed with other counties. He has exhibited each year at the county 4-H fair. He is president of the Cheshire County Youth Extension Club and has been adviser to one of the garden clubs in the State.

Joan Hall, Hillsboro County, started club work 7 years ago with clothing, foods, health, and leadership as her chief interests. She was a member of a clothing judging team 3 years. Each year she has participated in the dress revue and exhibited her clothing work at the county fairs. She has been secretary, president, project captain, junior leader, and music director of her club.

Shirley Read, Cheshire County, took her first 4-H project in clothing in 1929. Since that time she has completed 20 units in clothing, canning, food, health, leadership, forestry, and room improvement. She is one of the few club girls to be chosen as a member of a county forestry judging team. Shirley also has participated in food judging, and her exhibits at the county fairs have included foods and canning. She is active in the County Youth Extension Club and has served as president, vice president, and secretary of that organization since she has been a member.

NEW JERSEY

John Frudden, Monmouth County, after 6 years in club work has decided to stay on the farm. Poultry is his major farm interest. He has exhibited his poultry at county, State, and National shows, and has been on the poultry judging team for 4 years. John has given several demonstrations in "quality eggs." Chosen three times as president of his club, he also has served on various committees.

Gladys E. McGee, Gloucester County, as a club member for 5 years, has divided her time between home-economics and garden projects. Her work has included gardening, cooking, clothing, handicraft, and home beautification. Products of her skill as a seamstress have been exhibited at State fairs. She has given a demonstration in "American girl beauty products." She has been in demand as a speaker on home canning in her county, and has held several offices in her club.

Marion C. Stover, Morris County, a 4-H club member for 6 years, has successfully completed a variety of home-economics projects. These include sewing, food preservation, home management, and refinishing furniture. At the State fair she has exhibited canning and refinished furniture. Marion served as secretary, vice president, and president of her club.

Abram Van Doren, Hunterdon County, having joined a 4-H club 9 years ago, has given his attention to poultry keeping as well as dairying, the latter being his chief farming interest. His poultry has been exhibited at State, inter-State, and National shows. Abram has done considerable dairy judging. He has served his club as vice president, president, and chairman of the dairy committee.

NEW MEXICO

Jack Canon, San Miguel County, is in his sixth year of club work, having specialized in growing certified seed corn. Jack lives in a small community located at an altitude of about 7,000 feet, where there is very little rainfall and dry-land farming is practiced. Having tried both straight and contour rows, Jack found that the contour rows are better because they will hold water. He sent a 10-ear sample of corn to both the State fair and the International Hay and Grain Show at Chicago, each exhibit being successful. He was president of his club for 3 years and secretary 2 years, and is now assistant leader.

Pauline Day, Santa Fe County, has made practical use of her 8 years' club experience in canning, planning meals, room improvement, and clothing work. In all she has given 20 demonstrations in clothing, canning, cooking, room improvement, and record keeping, and has exhibited her projects several times. Pauline makes her own clothes, helps with the family canning, and in the summer plans, cooks, and serves all the meals for her family. At times she has helped as assistant leader. She has filled the club offices of president, vice president, secretary, and treasurer.

Margetta Ditto, Union County, has been interested in gardening, baking, meal planning, junior leadership, and clothing during the past 4 years. She makes all her own clothes and also sews for her mother and sisters. She makes and keeps a clothing budget as well as one for the family meals. Through her cooking and sewing she has worked her way through high school. In the summer she takes complete charge of the home for her mother. She has successfully exhibited her clothing work at the State fair. Margetta has held the offices of president, vice president, secretary, assistant leader, and chairman of the program committee.

Moses Johnson, Bernalillo County, has done outstanding work in livestock during his 6 years' membership in the 4-H club. He also has been successful in his garden work. During the past 5 years he and his father have been developing a new bean which now has reached a fairly satisfactory stage. The income from his swine project has defrayed his expenses in high school. He now has a registered sow, 4 pigs, and a boar. Throughout his club work he has kept records. Moses has consistently exhibited his swine at the county fairs. He has been president and vice president of his club and assistant leader.

NEW YORK

Evelyn May Fond, Orange County, has done good work in canning, baking, clothing, homemaking, room improvement, and gardening during the last 8 years. In addition to making her clothes, she has sewed for her mother and sister as well as for some of the poor children. She has made exhibits of her work at the county fairs and has been secretary, president, and program leader for her club.

Howard Limbacher, Ulster County, is interested in gardening, livestock, fruits, forestry, and farm mechanics. He has been a member of the vegetable judging team, put on an exhibit each year at the county fair, and given demonstrations on "storage of winter vegetables." He carries his garden project in partnership with his brothers. Howard is local leader of a boys' club and has given a number of talks on club work. He is bringing his 4-H experience book to National Camp.

Phillis Arnold, Columbia County, selected clothing, room improvement, canning, and baking as her club enterprises. She has exhibited each of her projects and given demonstrations in them every year at the county fairs. Phillis has planned and prepared about 100 meals, judged foods and clothing work, refinished furniture, and painted and papered her room. Each year she has taken charge of sewing for the new members. In addition to filling all the offices of her club, she has given talks on club work and been active in the Inter-County Council.

William Bonner, Monroe County, has specialized in raising potatoes and in farm mechanics during the past 9 years. He has exhibited potatoes at the State fair many times, given talks on club work, enrolled many other boys in the club, and last year helped to organize two 4-H girls' clubs. He is reporter for the County Council and has been president, vice president, secretary, and assistant leader of his club.

NORTH CAROLINA

Louise Bunn, Edgecombe County, has completed work in foods, clothing, room improvement, home beautification, and gardening during her 7 years' membership. She has put on exhibits of canning and clothing at State, inter-State, and National exhibitions, and been an assistant at the home demonstration curb market for 6 years. Louise served as local leader for 2 years, and as chairman of the program and fair committees, president of her club, and vice president of the County Council.

Oland Peele, Wayne County, living on a 100-acre farm, has made an outstanding record in hog raising. He also has raised baby beef, and in 1935 planted one-fourth an acre in onions, from which he sold 50 bushels. This year he added wildlife conservation to his program. Steers and pigs have been exhibited by Oland at State and county fairs. He has been a member of the livestock judging team, given talks on club work, and occupied all the offices of his club.

Roger Pollock, Jones County, has carried on varied projects since beginning club work in 1931. His chief interest has been in pigs, corn, and cotton, although he has raised some tobacco. Roger has exhibited his cows at the State fairs. He has filled all the offices of his club.

Elizabeth Randle, Cleveland County, has had many fine achievements in canning, clothing, room improvement, foods, and wildlife conservation. Her work has been exhibited each year at State and county fairs. As a member of a demonstration team she has given a demonstration in "refinishing furniture" and "table setting." In 1936 Elizabeth wrote and directed the county 4-H health pageant. Not only has she been secretary and president of her club but also president of the County Council.

NORTH DAKOTA

David Barnett, Ward County, has 7 years of club work as a member of the Go-Getter Swine Club to his credit. He specialized in swine and continued the work in the face of poor feed crops, high prices, and other discouraging developments because of his faith in the project. David lives on a 640-acre farm, has been a consistent and successful exhibitor, a member of the demonstration and judging teams, and has served as secretary, vice president, and president of his club. As a guest of the Rotary Club David has given a talk on club work.

Gertrude Lange, Bowman County, has completed 7 years' activity as a club member, her chief interests being foods, canning, and clothing, all of which she has exhibited many times at the State and county fairs. Gertrude has found it well worth while to keep a personal account book. She is a member of the county demonstration team, and has served as secretary, president, and assistant leader of her club. This year Gertrude was elected secretary of the State Achievement Institute.

Joseph Harry Wilson, Jr., Stutsman County, has specialized in dairy work during his 8 years' membership in the 4-H club. Last year he added farm-home improvement and special crops. As a member of the judging team he has been outstanding in cattle judging. He has exhibited dairy stock almost every year, and at the State fairs also exhibited seed and flower collections, and corn. At a time when it was difficult to obtain a local leader Harry acted as assistant leader of his club and created interest by promoting a club baseball team, the production of a successful play, and the organization of a singing group. He continued his project work and kept records, even when there was no club organization in his community. In addition to being secretary and president of his club he has also been president of the county council.

Harriet R. Wilson, Dickey County, has had 10 years' experience in 4-H club work, carrying the grade-sheep project during the entire period. In addition she has carried work in purebred sheep, cooking, sewing, baby beef, poultry, and home furnishing. Harriet has exhibited her best animals nearly every year: she also has exhibited her poultry, canning, clothing, and home-furnishing projects. She has served her club for 4 years as recreational leader, 5 years as secretary, and is now vice president of the 1938 Achievement Institute.

OHIO

J. Bernard Hutchinson, Clermont County, has been raising market lambs, calves, sow and litter during the past 6 years. In addition to being president of his club for 3 years, he has been recreation leader, secretary, and vice president.

J. Harold McCullough, Jefferson County, has specialized in dairying for the past 10 years since joining a 4-H Club. He has filled the offices of reporter, recreation leader, secretary, vice president, president, and chairman of the program committee.

Helen E. Edgar, Fulton County, has had 9 years' experience in canning, foods, and clothing. Her canned goods have been exhibited many times at the State fair. Helen has occupied the offices of club president, secretary, assistant leader, and reporter.

Margaret Fraendly, Coshocton County, living on a 215-acre farm, has been interested in sheep, leadership, clothing, and nutrition during the past 7 years. Margaret has been reporter, recreation leader, vice president, president, and chairman of the program committee.

OKLAHOMA

Lloyd Hawkins, Washita County, has completed 7 years' activity in poultry, gardening, berries, and livestock. During this time he has made 90 exhibits, given 35 demonstrations and 30 talks on club work, and been quite active in judging. Lloyd has written for his club all demonstration and timely topics for contests and local meetings, called all club meetings, appointed committees, and held all the offices of his club. Five approved practices were put to use on the farm through Lloyd.

Vernice Johnson, Pontotoc County, selected canning, gardening, baking, poultry, dairy, and home improvement work when she joined the 4-H club 7 years ago. Her garden has produced 3,000 pounds of vegetables which has effected a considerable saving in the grocery bill. Vernice has canned 525 quarts and assisted neighbors with their canning. In addition to making all her own clothes, she has helped to judge 65 gardens, given 18 demonstrations, and made 16 exhibits of baking, clothing, and home-improvement work. In the home-improvement project she improved five rooms of her home. She has been secretary of her club and assistant coach for 4 years.

Laura Belle Sherwood, Nowata County, living on a 320-acre farm, has had 5 years of experience in canning, food preparation, clothing, poultry, gardening, and home improvement. She has given demonstrations in home improvement and foods and exhibited her various club projects, given talks on club work. Laura Belle also has had supervision of exhibits at the county fairs and coached her club for the past 3 years in team demonstrations, as well as filling all her club offices.

Franklin Spore, Kay County, started his club work with turkeys, and still carries the same line of work in addition to crops, dairy, beef, and swine. Franklin has given demonstrations in "selecting, feeding, and showing of fat barrows," done livestock judging each year, and exhibited livestock at county and State fairs and livestock shows. In addition to being president for the past 3 years, he has been president of the Junior Livestock Association and of the County 4-H Federation.

OREGON

Margaret Wagner, Multnomah County, has had 7 years' experience in canning, clothing, room improvement, and news writing. Margaret has exhibited her various club enterprises at the State and county fairs. She has filled the office of secretary, president, reporter, song leader, and been a member of the program committee.

PENNSYLVANIA

Margaret Cole, Bucks County, has 6 years' club work to her credit, and has participated in the clothing, foods and health, room improvement, canning, junior flower club, and other home-economics projects. Last year she was able to do half of the family canning for her mother. Margaret has given demonstrations in clothing work, been a member of several demonstration teams, and exhibited her projects several times. She has been president of the county 4-H Council, chairman of the county camp committee, a leader in her local club, and participates in numerous county-wide activities.

Mabel E. Hower, Northampton County, during her 8 years in club work has completed the requirements for 11 projects, including canning, baking, meal planning, foods and health, and clothing. In her exhibits she has shown bread, clothing, and canning. Mabel has been active in the county 4-H Council, having served as vice president and secretary. Last January she took responsibility for the traveling library which the 4-H club of 60 members has borrowed from the State library for use of club members and other boys and girls interested in reading. She has assisted in the organization of a club chorus of 25 members.

Clark Kostenbader, Union County, who lives on a 100-acre farm, has carried on 5 projects, three of them being calf, corn, and bees, during his 9 years as a club member. During his membership he has exhibited cattle, corn, and honey, and has been a member of four county judging teams. His other activities have included membership on the township committee for retesting cattle for tuberculosis, participation in annual agricultural-association meetings, and leadership of a capon club. He has had a marked influence in bringing about the adoption of improved agricultural practices on the home farm. He now has 3 cows, 2 heifers, and 16 colonies of bees.

A. Milton Ranck, Lancaster County, has had 7 years' experience in club work in corn, baby beef, and tobacco. Being a 4-H club member is traditional in Milton's family. He has exhibited baby beef and corn, and has been on five county judging teams, as well as being active in the social and recreational activities of his community. He was president of the county 4-H Council 2 years.

RHODE ISLAND

Barbara Fenner, Providence County, became interested 7 years ago in canning, gardening, clothing, health, handicraft, home improvement, and leadership work. Barbara makes her own clothes, has charge of a sewing club of 10 younger girls, has made three State and nine county exhibits of her work, is an All Star member, and has held every office in her club.

Margaret Edna Holdsworth, Providence County, has 9 years' club work to her credit including poultry, dairy, leadership, canning, and clothing. Her record keeping has proved helpful, as her people have been able to cull many cows that the records proved to be poor. It has often been difficult to keep records which involve so much figuring of grain prices, ratios, etc., but it was good mathematical training and valuable. She is leader of her club. The girls work together willingly, and last year, at the State fair, demonstrated the making of cookies and exhibited a brother and sister suit they had made together. She has filled all the offices in her club.

Alexander B. Simmons, Newport County, began club work 10 years ago with pigs as his first project. About 3 years later, after selling the pigs, he started dairy work with a purebred Holstein and has continued in this line during the past 7 years. He added poultry last year and now has 250 chickens. He has exhibited his pigs and calves at the county fairs, had the club members meet at his farm to demonstrate clean milk, been on many judging and inspection tours which he considers most valuable in club work. He has kept farm records. He is now planning a roadside stand where he can sell milk, eggs, butter, and dressed poultry. He has been secretary of his club for 2 years.

Charles G. Vaughn, Kent County, has learned many useful things since joining the 4-H club in 1931. His chief interests have been poultry, handicraft, gardening, and forestry. In 1933 much of his club work was confined to handicraft; he made 20 feed hoppers for a poultryman and 50 articles to be used around the house. In 1935 he sold his poultry and enlarged his garden to eight thousand square feet, supplying his home with vegetables. One of his neighbors bought all his vegetables that summer. In 1936 he organized the Wood Carvers' Club. He received an offer to make novelties and small furniture for a summer place which he accepted. He has often taught the class in manual training. His handicraft work has been exhibited at the State fairs. He has been president of his club and was assistant leader for two years.

SOUTH CAROLINA

Pruitt Agnew, Anderson County.

Bobbie DeLoach, Hampton County.

Margaret Gandy, Darlington County.

Madeline Livingston, Aiken County.

SOUTH DAKOTA

Arvid Ambur, Lyman County, has made good progress with his 4-H beef project, feeding out one or more steers each year and at the same time raising some beef heifers to develop a herd. He has been reporter, vice president, and president of the baby-beef club and now serves as assistant leader. Arvid has helped to organize programs for the purpose of raising money to send members of the club to the summer camp and State club week. He has taken special interest in livestock judging.

Marian Bonde, Brown County, now in her eighth year of club work, has completed projects in clothing, home furnishings, and foods. In addition, she has done a large amount of work in the field of food preservation and the conservation of wildlife. She serves as leader of a group of younger girls. On many occasions she has been a member of a demonstration team and now coaches teams. Marian has been vice president of the State 4-H Members' Association and has been active in the women's self-governing association and leadership club at the college where she is taking a teacher's training course.

Clark Thomas, Bon Homme County, has been a member of a 4-H club for 10 years, each year increasing his livestock holdings. The swine project has been his principal activity, although he has fed baby beeves as well. Clark has been active in judging and demonstration work, representing South Dakota in interstate demonstrations. For the past 6 years he has been a consistent exhibitor at the State fair. In addition to sponsoring health programs in the local club he has served 3 years as local leader.

Jeanette Unruh, Turner County, has a record of 5 years of dairy, foods, home-furnishing, and clothing-club work. This year she is enrolled in the meal-planning program. Jeanette has shown excellence in judging, demonstration, style revue, exhibits, and health. She is president of the State 4-H Member's Association, and is serving as assistant leader this year.

TENNESSEE

Mary Falls, Gibson County, has been a 4-H club member since 1930, carrying gardening, canning, and poultry each year. In 1933 she grew cotton, and in 1934 added clothing to her other projects. Mary lives on a 90-acre farm three-fourths of a mile off the gravel road. She is the eldest of three children, and a typical club member to whom club work has meant much. On the best all-round county record, Mary has excelled. She has successfully exhibited her sewing as well as her canned products at the fair and has participated in style dress revues. She was junior leader and president of her club and chairman of the County Council in 1937.

Rose Ferguson, Roane County, has done much to make farm living better and more comfortable. She has made excellent records in gardening, clothing, room improvement, and cooking, and carried out the health habits. Rose makes clothes for her family when she has time, and has been able to dress attractively at low cost because of her ability to sew. She has redecorated the living room, renovated the furniture, and improved her bedroom, making it entirely over. Rose also has improved the yard with flowers, shrubs, and bulbs. She has canned 461 quarts of food. In addition to preparing meals she has specialized in making cakes and rolls. She enters into all programs not only in her own but in other communities, and has exhibited her work at the fairs for the past 3 or 4 years.

Vernon Hale, Hamblen County, in his 4 years of club work has built up a long list of achievements, his chief interests being baby beef, hogs, and corn. He has been a member of the livestock judging team. Last year he was outstanding in the production of corn. He has served his club as president.

Wallace Carter, Humphreys County, has spent 8 years in club work. He started by raising 1 acre of corn, he then fed a pig; the following year he raised both corn and pig and later branched out into baby beef work. Wallace has exhibited corn and calves at the State fair, and been a member of the livestock judging team. He has been president of his club for 3 years and a member of the county livestock judging team.

TEXAS

Ellis Britton, Hale County, in addition to specializing in beef calves and hogs, has carried on a diversified crop program in his club work for the last 7 years including cotton, kafir, wheat, milo, hegaria, and cane. He has consistently exhibited livestock, and, as a member of the dairy judging team, he has done good work. He has marketed as much of his crops as possible through livestock and then sold surplus, keeping records of his enterprises. As part of a State-wide program, he planted 15 acres of cotton last year. He has been president, vice president, and secretary of his club.

Elizabeth Harrison, Johnson County, has made practical use of her 6 years' experience in canning, gardening, clothing, and room improvement. She does all the family sewing and also helps with the canning. In addition to putting on exhibits, she has given many demonstrations, and as a result of her canning demonstration has sold to the local grocer 20 gallons of sweet, sour, and crystallized pickle made from cucumbers that she raised. She has canned 154 quarts of pineapple for a wholesale dealer. Her room-improvement work has included refinishing floors, helping her father to put in new windows, and painting all the interior woodwork. Starting with her bedroom, her efforts have resulted in the remodeling of the entire house, and many people have visited her home to inspect the improvements she has made. Elizabeth has filled all the offices of her club.

J. D. Jordan, Mason County, who lives on a 2000-acre farm has experienced and enjoyed 8 years of club work, specializing in baby beeves. He has fed out 48 Hereford calves, and done some excellent work in judging many classes of livestock. At both State and National shows he has exhibited fat steers many times, encountering and overcoming difficulties in getting the stock to their destination - in 1935 he took a calf to Kansas City, Mo., in a pick-up and its nurse cow in a trailer. On the 850-mile trip his father and the county agent accompanied him: it rained during 700 miles of the 850. He owns several head of purebred Herefords. He has helped to make some improvements around the home besides building a calf barn.

Pauline Miller, Wharton County, has had a part in nearly every phase of 4-H club work during her 7 years' membership - poultry, room improvement, canning, and gardening. Her yard has become a demonstration in good arrangement and in the selection and care of plants. She has helped to plan and select the varieties of fruit for the orchard, grown 2669 pounds of vegetables and canned 833 containers herself and helped with the rest of the gardening and canning. Her father made her a bedroom by enclosing one end of the porch. She helped with the planning and was on hand with the actual building too, and painted the woodwork. Pauline has exhibited her club work, and has helped many people because of her clothing project. Each year she has had a flock of chickens that has contributed toward her college expenses. She has made most of her clothes. Pauline filled the various offices in her club.

Texas - Continued

VERMONT

Frederick J. Allen, Chittenden County, in addition to specializing in the 4-H dairy project during his 9 years' membership, has done work in gardening, handicrafts, potato growing, and maple-sugar making. He has participated in judging cattle, giving demonstrations in "Testing milk," "Putting together a bee-hive," and "Feeds and their value." Among his exhibits have been "Forestry practices," and "The model roadside stand." In 1933 he had the best 4-H potato-growing record as well as the best secretary's report in the county. When Frederick first entered a 4-H club, he made a hotbed and a large coldframe for transplanting. The first 3 years he raised tomato plants and some radishes and lettuce; now he sows flower seeds with the tomato plants in order to enlarge his business. He has held all the offices in his club.

James J. Anderson, Washington County, who lives on a 100-acre farm, has made practical use of his 7 years' club work in poultry, handicraft, forestry and dairying. His work at home has included building a wind charger for batteries and lights, a lathe table and power-saw equipment, and a trailer. James has given demonstrations in handicraft, grading eggs, and the Babcock test for butterfat in milk. He has filled the club offices of vice president, secretary, and reporter.

Rachel Fowler, Bennington County, is completing her ninth year in club work, her projects having included 4-H foods-health, clothing, forestry, and junior leadership. Rachel made her own graduation costume and has been active in judging clothing work. In forestry work she has thinned and pruned a portion of a white-pine wood lot. She and her brother have given a public demonstration on "Care of a wood lot," showing how to thin and prune, and also giving examples of blister rust and white-pine weevil. This year she is a member and leader of a club of 17 members doing sewing, gardening, poultry, and some dairying, treasurer of the 4-H Older Young People's Group, and secretary of the home demonstration group. Rachel feels that her 9 years of club work have enabled her to have a clearer understanding of nature and the country, the happiness a country girl can find on the farm, the value of homemaking, and the pleasure of making new friends and learning to work and live with each other. In addition to being a leader in 4-H club work, she is active in home demonstration activities in her county.

Irene Quimby, Caledonia County, chose foods-health, canning, clothing, room improvement, and junior leadership as her club work 7 years ago. She has been a consistent and successful exhibitor of her canned goods and clothing work and on many occasions has been a member of a demonstration team. Her room-improvement work has consisted of refinishing chairs, making bureaus and dressing table from orange crates, and making curtains, sheets, pillowcases and other articles for her room. Irene was elected to the County 4-H Council, has acted as assistant to the regular leader, and has held every office in her club.

Vermont - Continued

VIRGINIA

Guy P. Poole, Buckingham County, a club member of 8 years' standing has carried the following projects: Poultry, potatoes, tobacco, corn, and gardening. In addition to the judging work which he has done at the fairs he has exhibited corn each year during the past 3 years, having been quite successful with his corn project which he carried for 4 years. Guy was president of his club for 4 years and is now president of the 4-H Council.

Doris Steele, Fairfax County, has covered, during her 10 years' experience, a wide range of club work including forestry, clothing, home improvement, canning, and food preparation. She makes all her own clothing, and has painted the woodwork and furniture of her room, and helped her family to save a considerable amount by her canning and cooking at home. Last year she canned 100 quarts herself, and helped her mother to can 980 quarts, she also has canned vegetables for the school lunch. In addition to judging foods and clothing, has given demonstrations in "quick breads" and "cutting out a dress," and exhibited her clothing work at the style dress revue. She has filled the offices of secretary, treasurer, vice president, and recreation leader.

Virginia Smith, Halifax County, has learned a good many useful things since joining the 4-H club 6 years ago, when she enrolled in canning, poultry, clothing, and room improvement. In her room-improvement work, without the expenditure of money, she has made rugs, and many things for her room. Virginia makes all her own clothes and assists in making the clothes of other members of the family. She plans and uses a canning budget. An acre of ground was donated to the club for their recreation project and she has helped with the planning and cooking of out-door meals and helped to get the community interested in the work. She has filled many of the offices of her club.

Andrew H. Yancey, Rockingham County, started 4-H club work by raising turkeys about 8 years ago; later he added the cow and calf project. He has been a member of the judging and demonstration team, having judged poultry at the county, district, and State fairs. Andrew has exhibited turkeys each year for the past 7 years, and has had charge of the poultry department at fairs the last 2 years. He has taken the responsibility of holding the club together, calling meetings, etc. He has been president of his club and chairman of the program committee.

WASHINGTON

Betty Bauer, Whitman County, living on a 240-acre farm has had 8 years' experience in 4-H club work including gardening, canning, meal planning, room improvement, poultry, and clothing. She has given demonstrations in her various club enterprises, has made 17 exhibits of her club projects at State fairs, and has been outstanding in her judging work. Betty has trained demonstration teams. She has held the offices of president, vice president, treasurer, and reporter, in addition to being the leader of her club for the past 4 years,

James Christofferson, Skagit County, in addition to specializing in dairying during the past 10 years, has had 2 years' experience in gardening, an acre of peas being his project each year. James has been a member of the demonstration team, has done excellent work in judging, and has been consistently successful in exhibiting his young livestock and his crop of peas. At present he has a herd of 27 cows, 1 calf, and 4 heifers. He not only has held all the offices of his club, but is vice president of the County 4-H Council and on the fair-board committee.

Katharyn Hornbeck, Kittitas County, has done especially good work in room improvement, leadership, health, clothing, and meal planning during her 6 years' membership in a 4-H club. She has been a member of the demonstration team for the past 4 years and has done judging at the county and State fairs. Katharyn has been outstanding in leadership, has exhibited her work at the State and county fairs, has been secretary of the County Leaders' Council and president, vice president, and editor of her club.

Dale Jones, Yakima County, has been interested in sheep, beef, swine, and corn during the last 10 years. Dale was a member of the demonstration team which gave demonstrations in "Blocking and filling sheep" at the State fairs. Over a number of years he has exhibited beef cattle, corn, sheep, and swine at county, State, and inter-State expositions. He has been a member of the judging team and held all the offices in his club.

WEST VIRGINIA

L. Carl Cornell, Marion County, has completed 8 years of club work in gardening, and baking. At the State fair he has exhibited garden products and also his baking, many times. Carl has always been much interested in club work and at present is coaching 4-H teams. He has held the offices of vice president and chairman of the market program.

Rose Mary Smith, Roane County, living on a 400-acre farm, has specialized in sewing and canning during her 7 years' membership. On many occasions she has exhibited her work at the State fair. She has been an active member of the judging team, and last year was in charge of the style show. She has coached her team and given public demonstrations. Rose has held the club offices of vice president, president, and has been chairman of four committees.

Margie Tam, Boone County, has included sewing, baking, meal planning, room improvement, and nature study among her club enterprises during the past 9 years. Margie has charge of the program for all organizations of her community and has occupied all the offices of her club.

Thomas R. Wilson Jr., Fayette County, has completed 8 years of club activity in handicraft, archery, and nature study. He has made exhibits of his handicraft and archery work and been active in judging. He has assumed the responsibility of having a 4-H club organization each year, and has served in all the offices of his club.

WISCONSIN

Lee M. Kingsley, Burnett County, together with his brother, enrolled in 4-H club work 10 years ago. His chief interests have been gardening, dairy calf, home beautification, and junior leadership. The fact that he owned the first purebred calf on their farm has increased materially his interest in dairying. Lee found that his garden helped out tremendously during the depression. Through the home-beautification work he has helped to improve both the home and the yard. His father assumed the leadership of the calf club for 4 years. He has been reporter, secretary, treasurer, vice president, and president of his club at various times.

Ann Mary Kyle, Walworth County, living on a 142-acre farm has included in her club activities canning, foods, home furnishings, junior leadership, clothing, and baking. In addition to being active in demonstration and judging she has exhibited her work. Some of her canning was shown at the International Century of Progress. Ann has been a member of the 4-H club orchestra which has supplied the community with music. She has assisted in leadership work in her club of 76 members, kept health records for 8 years, and filled most of the club offices.

Annette Lohuis, Sheboygan County, has completed 11 years' activity in baking, junior leadership, foods, clothing, calf, and room-improvement work. Annette has a long record of public demonstrations, judging work, and exhibits at the State fairs. She has given talks on 4-H club work, helped the agent at county meetings, and represented her State for 3 years in the State fair music festival. This year she is youth adviser for a woman's magazine. She has been chairman of several committees and also has filled the offices of secretary, vice president, and president.

Raymond Scott, Rock County, has specialized in colt, calf, corn growing, and junior leadership during the past 4 years. In addition to being a member of several demonstration teams, he has exhibited his club enterprises at the State fair and Junior Livestock Exposition, and given a talk on "4-H Colt-Club Work." This year Raymond is leader of the colt club and assistant director of his club, as well as chairman of the finance committee. He has served as club reporter, treasurer, and president.

WYOMING

Doris Bender, Park County, has 7 years of club work to her credit which includes baking, canning, and clothing. Doris has given a demonstration each year in cooking and baking, participated in the county style revue, and exhibited her work at both State and county fairs. Last summer she led a group of small girls in a foods club. She has been recreation leader, reporter, secretary, president, and vice president of her club.

Charles K. Lawrence, Johnson County, has a splendid 6-year record in purebred-cattle, sheep, baby-beef, and pheasant-raising work. Charles has faithfully kept records. He has been a member of the judging and demonstration teams and has done excellent work in judging livestock at the county fairs. He has exhibited his baby beef steers at Denver, helped to organize a 4-H club in his community, and held all the offices in his club. He now has 4 head of purebred cows, 10 head of grade cattle, 14 ewes, and 3 lambs.

Robert Marr, Platte County, lives on a 930-acre farm and has completed 7 years of club work in corn, hogs, sow and litter, and beef calf. He has been a member of the stock-judging team, participating in the county and State fairs. He has given a demonstration in "Preparation of sheaf and threshed grain for exhibit." Robert has exhibited his hogs and crops at the county and State fairs, held all the offices in his club, and been responsible for the organization of 4-H clubs for the past 3 years.

Elizabeth Rishel, Campbell County, has specialized in room improvement and clothing during her 6 years in club work. She has trained two demonstration teams, participated in the clothing and home-economics judging, and exhibited clothing and clothes-closet accessories at the State fair. Elizabeth has been secretary of her club for 3 years and has rendered splendid assistance in helping to organize 4-H clubs.

